While compiling his collection of records, Richard Schellens would put some type of indexing information at the top of the page or paragraph. Some of these were places, some family names and some business types.

In this index I have compiled all the place names that were used in headings throughout the one hundred and ninety two volumes of the California Collection. Some entries might just lead you to an entry in a gazetteer, but often even these entries with negligible information will have a small hand drawn map showing the towns nearby.

Other entries might lead you to a few pages about a small town that no longer exists; multiple pages with directory lists, newspaper articles, pictures and postcards about a small city or town; or a full volume of extractions from a multitude of sources about a town or city. Nearly every city in San Mateo County has a full volume and many have two, Redwood City itself is a collection of more than thirty volumes covering every aspect of its formation and the families that populated it from the 1850s to 1975.

The sixty seven volumes of San Francisco yielded only two place names, San Francisco and the Presidio. There was no attempt to pinpoint the locations within the city, the volumes instead being arranged by Family names and by business types.

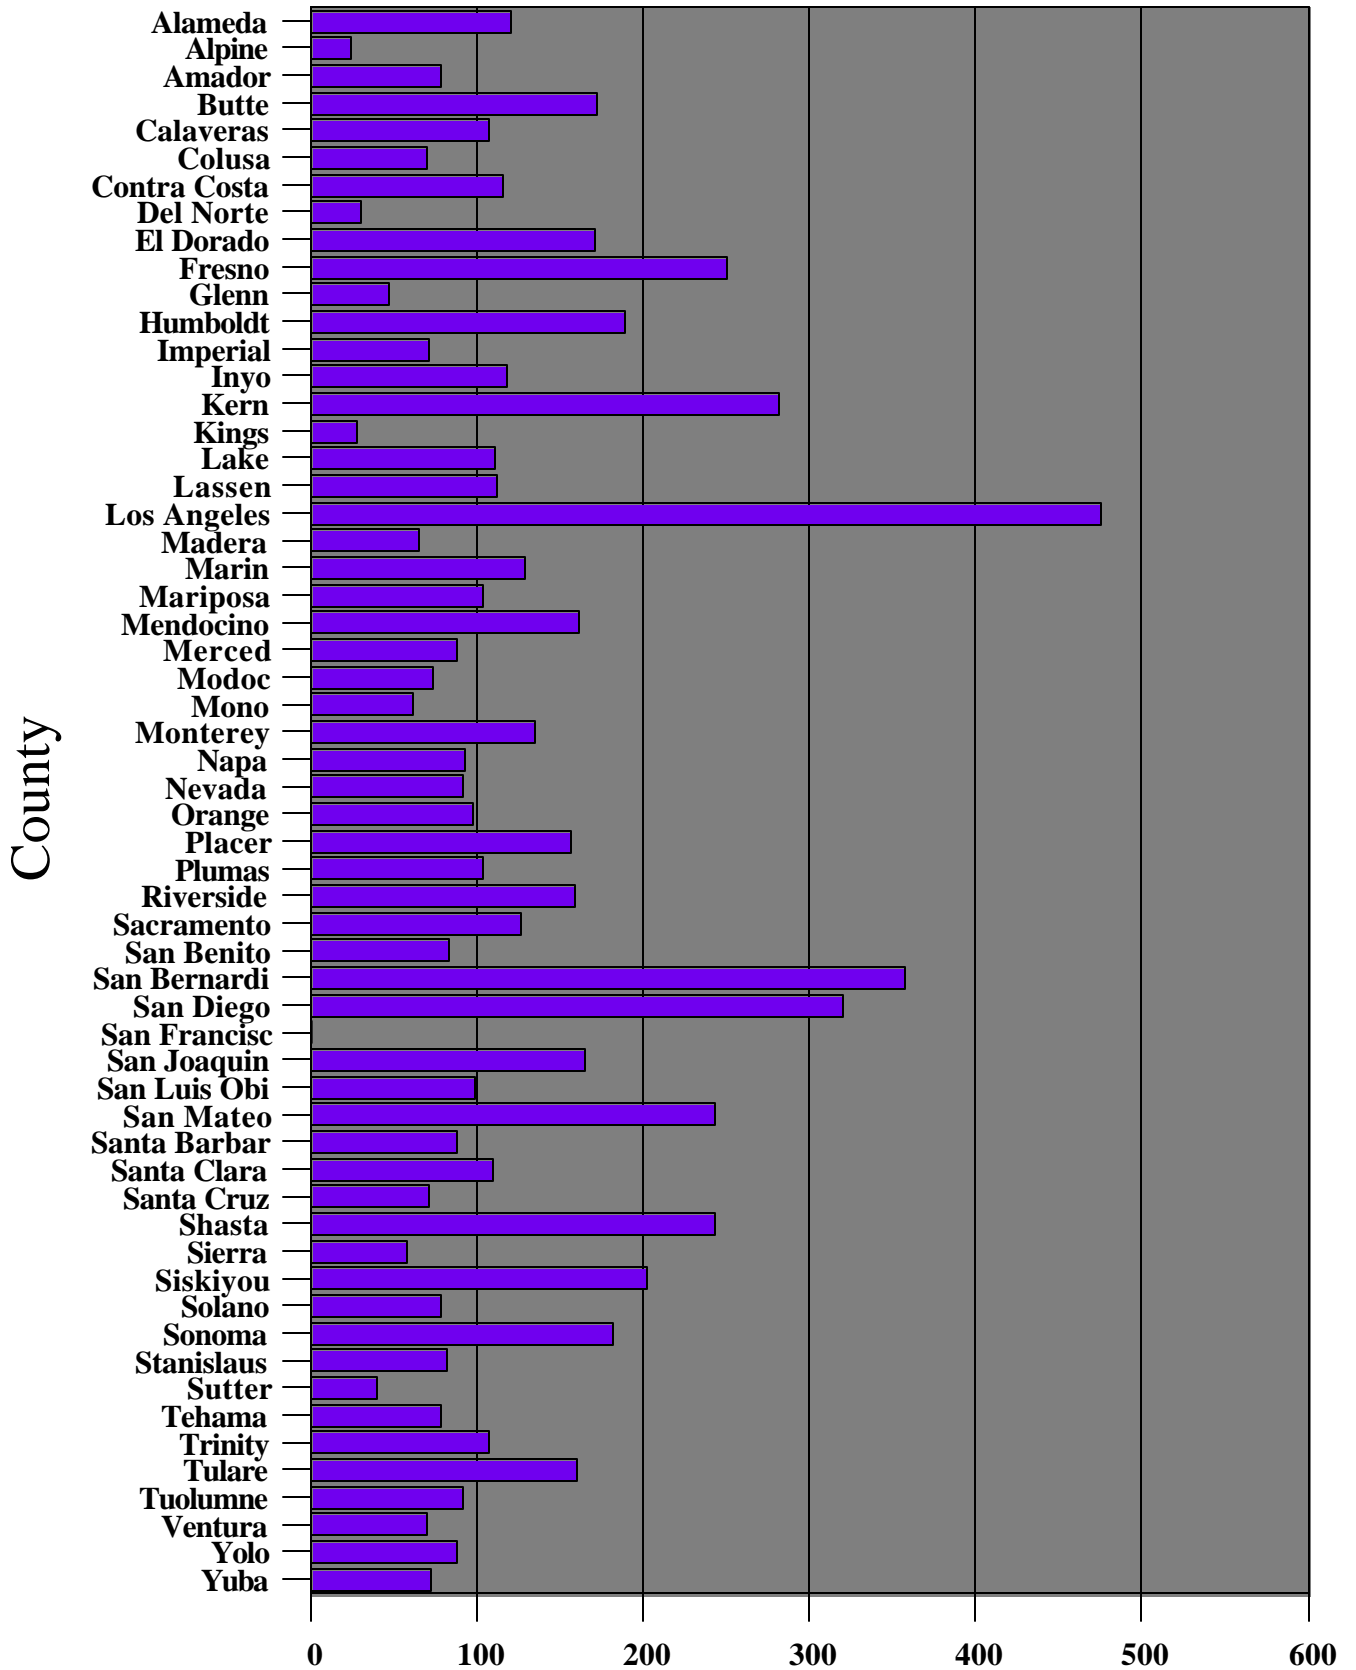

This index is the first in a set. Every name indexes are in progress for the entire collection, and when completed will be a finding source beyond any available in California today. When used with the California Library Index, the California Newspaper Index, the census and the 1890 Great Register the chances of finding your California Connections will be much higher.

A source index is also being compiled. When finished it will be a helpful bibliography of California source material, and will help researchers move from Schellens which is in most cases not a primary source to the original records. As the list is compiled we will attempt to identify the major libraries in the state that have the source books, newspapers and periodicals in their collections, or in the case of original county records, the current access to those records.

This is very much a work in progress and the finish date will be a few years down the road. We hope that this beginning index will help researchers who would like to consult the index or find a town in California while they wait.
